Yaralla to host famous baking show

Reminiscent of the days when Dame Eadith Walker hosted magical dinner parties for VIPs and locals, the beautiful Yaralla Estate is playing home to 'The Great Australian Bake Off' this month.

The television production, by FremantleMedia Australia, will showcase the majestic grounds of the estate as the backdrop for the next series of the show.

Producers have allowed us to show you a sneak preview of the temporary set which, through the magic of television, looks like a permanent structure but is actually a marquee.

The set and locations have been approved by Sydney Local Health District and the NSW Office of Environment and Heritage, and funds received from filming will be used to maintain Yaralla Estate.

The marquee will be removed once filming has finished.

We're very excited to host the production and look forward to seeing glimpses of the community grounds when the series airs on Foxtel later this year.
